

To Victory Prison Worker...

Brother it was so good to hear from you. Thank you for writing. Your letter brought me both joy and confirmation. I have to thank you for all your prayers since my last letter. We spent a lot of time praying and talking with the Lord and I'm doing much better. I usually talk out loud praising and thanking the Lord for just being Him and being with me. People see and hear me and start walking little faster getting away from me. LOL.

You know since I came to this place I've prayed a lot and I sat back and started to think and see that God has answered so many of my prayers. I've noticed that even though I'm here, I've had more blessings now than when I was out there living my life my way and, you're right, I will never forget this time, but now I know that I needed to go through this in order for me to hear His voice and become the man, dad, and husband He has predestined me to be. Because, I can honestly say that if I didn't get arrested when I did, I would probably be dead right now.

Since I've been down, I've learned to love myself and others as well. I've learned to look at things and people differently. For the first time since my early teens, I'm sober and in better shape than ever before. I've basically lost what I had but I have gained so much more-a personal relationship with God through Christ-and I know that all will be restored to me in the name of Jesus. I know this is just a minor set-back for a major comeback. But it's all going to be for the good.

I'm down to months now. Nov 14 is my day but I'm just looking at today like Jesus says, why worry about tomorrow for tomorrow will have its own worries. I really thank you for being a friend and I truly thank God that He let our paths met.

I'll continue to pray for you and the growing family. I thank you for the confirmation that I'm not alone and that God is always with me. Hope to hear from you again.

Your Friend,
